

invigorating red blood that makes his blood rush through his veins, and you throw him a big old steak, and he gobbles up that steak, and you don't want this predator to eat red meat because he may attack a human being, do you think you are going to take away that predator's taste for meat by feeding him all the meat he can eat? No. So if you have an out-of-control agency now, and that agency is presided over by Don Leuenberger, and he can't control this little bit, what did Jesus tell all of you? If you're not faithful in little, you will not be faithful in much. He gives you a little bit to test you, to see how trustworthy you are, how capable you are of being faithful in the little thing, and you cannot handle that. Why give you the entire farm? So here we have Don Leuenberger, who cannot handle DSS. You think that he magically is going to be able to control not only DSS but this superbureaucracy?

PRESIDENT ROBAK: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Perish the thought. This whole process, this bill will not withstand scrutiny and analysis. What I am talking about now should have been what the entire discussion concerned itself with, and had that been the case, I wouldn't have had to do what I'm doing now. But it's a political bill. A political exercise is underway, and I want to try to at least slow the train down and let the public get a clearer picture of the futility of what it is we're doing because the Governor can do it even better right now, and it's his responsibility to do it.

PRESIDENT ROBAK: Thank you, Senator Chambers. Senator Avery.

SENATOR AVERY: I will yield my time to Senator Chambers.

PRESIDENT ROBAK: Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Madam President, people not only want to hear what I have to say, they are testing me to see if I can carry on, but when I really believe in something, it's not difficult for me, and I'm like one of those marathon runners, where the more you run the more you get into it, then you get your second wind. The reason I wish we would look at this bill is because I'm concerned about the integrity of the Legislature as an institution. I have often talked about the way the Attorney General can kick the Legislature around, the way the Governor
